I'm Not a Poet...

By Maxine Campbell

When growing up in April and May
We had a poem we liked to say
It was an easy one with a catchy verse
One you didn't have to rehearse
So often, at least every day
We would recite it and always say

"Roses are red
Violets are blue
Sugar is sweet
And so are you."

It made us feel good to smile and recite,
To those who were lose it made them feel bright
I'm not a poet as you can tell
But I do try to use my words quite well.

Abiding Love

By Harold Canham
(To My wife - Shelby)

For as Long as the sun shall bring a new day.
For as long as the moon shall call to the sea.
My love for you will never know the night.

April 25, 2019 National Poem in My Pocket Day

The residents enjoyed discussing Mother Goose Nursery Rhymes and other childhood poems. We discovered that we have "undiscovered" poets in Windsor House.

They have allowed us the privilege of being the first to publish their masterpieces.
